

Junior Scientist Zoonoses Meeting 2019

The German Research Platform for Zoonoses invites motivated doctoral students and postdocs from all disciplines of zoonoses research to a multidisciplinary meeting at the Robert Koch-Institute from June 20th till 22nd, 2019.

- Discuss your research

Present and discuss your own research in moderated multidisciplinary discussion groups of junior scientist.

- Career Sessions/ Keynote Talks

Get a glimpse on the diversity of career paths in zoonoses research and expand your professional knowledge by talks of established senior scientists.

- Expand your own network

And much more!

Visit www.zoonosen.net/JuniorScientists.aspx for more info!

General Information

- Open to all doctoral students and postdocs (< 3 years post graduation) who are members of the German Research Platform for Zoonoses
Becoming a member is easy and free of charge!
- Venue: Robert Koch-Institute, Seestraße 10, 13353 Berlin

Prerequisite for participation

- Potential participants must send in an abstract illustrating the zoonosis and multidisciplinary aspect of their research.
- The entry deadline is 1st of May, 2019.
- Participation is creditable for the One Health-Certificate

The conference language is English.

Participants have to organize and pay for their travel expenses and accommodation by themselves.

Contact details

Isle of Riems office, contact Dr. Dana Thal;
c/o Friedrich-Loeffler-Institut; Federal Research Institute for Animal Health
Institute for Novel and Emerging Infectious Diseases
Tel.: +49 (0)38351 7-1198 | E-Mail: dana.thal@fli.de | Internet: www.zoonosen.net

